Jefferson students, staff members and par ents cheered as Hermosillo, whose son, Efrain, is a kindergartner at the school, landed in the sunny sky for local skydiver Luis Octavio Lumbreras squinted as he searched the sky for his son. "I just want to see him," Lumbreras said. "I wouldn't be able to do this without my son."

"I just think he's going to be great. I really want to see him because I've never seen a skydiver."

"It's just something new for them. It's a way to raise money for the Jefferson Elementary School," said principal Dixie Vejil. "For them to see that there's other professions..."

Jefferson skydive: ‘Awesome’

GABRIELA MUÑOZ
After a long day of playday activities, Jefferson Elementary School first-grader Octavio Lumbreras squinted as he searched the sunny sky for local skydiver Luis Hermosillo. "I just want to see him," Lumbreras said. "I just think he's going to be great. I really want to see him because I've never seen a skydiver."

"I just think he's going to be great. I really want to see him because I've never seen a skydiver."

"It's just something new for them. It's a way to raise money for the Jefferson Elementary School," said principal Dixie Vejil. "For them to see that there's other professions..."

Jefferson students, staff members and par ents cheered as Hermosillo, whose son, Efrain, is a kindergartner at the school, landed in the sunny sky for local skydiver Luis Octavio Lumbreras squinted as he searched the sky for his son. "I just want to see him," Lumbreras said. "I wouldn't be able to do this without my son."

"I just think he's going to be great. I really want to see him because I've never seen a skydiver."

"It's just something new for them. It's a way to raise money for the Jefferson Elementary School," said principal Dixie Vejil. "For them to see that there's other professions..."

Jefferson skydive: ‘Awesome’

GABRIELA MUÑOZ
After a long day of playday activities, Jefferson Elementary School first-grader Octavio Lumbreras squinted as he searched the sunny sky for local skydiver Luis Hermosillo. "I just want to see him," Lumbreras said. "I just think he's going to be great. I really want to see him because I've never seen a skydiver."

"I just think he's going to be great. I really want to see him because I've never seen a skydiver."

"It's just something new for them. It's a way to raise money for the Jefferson Elementary School," said principal Dixie Vejil. "For them to see that there's other professions..."

Jefferson students, staff members and par ents cheered as Hermosillo, whose son, Efrain, is a kindergartner at the school, landed in the sunny sky for local skydiver Luis Octavio Lumbreras squinted as he searched the sky for his son. "I just want to see him," Lumbreras said. "I wouldn't be able to do this without my son."

"I just think he's going to be great. I really want to see him because I've never seen a skydiver."

"It's just something new for them. It's a way to raise money for the Jefferson Elementary School," said principal Dixie Vejil. "For them to see that there's other professions..."

Jefferson students, staff members and par ents cheered as Hermosillo, whose son, Efrain, is a kindergartner at the school, landed in the sunny sky for local skydiver Luis Octavio Lumbreras squinted as he searched the sky for his son. "I just want to see him," Lumbreras said. "I wouldn't be able to do this without my son."

"I just think he's going to be great. I really want to see him because I've never seen a skydiver."

"It's just something new for them. It's a way to raise money for the Jefferson Elementary School," said principal Dixie Vejil. "For them to see that there's other professions..."

Jefferson students, staff members and par ents cheered as Hermosillo, whose son, Efrain, is a kindergartner at the school, landed in the sunny sky for local skydiver Luis Octavio Lumbreras squinted as he searched the sky for his son. "I just want to see him," Lumbreras said. "I wouldn't be able to do this without my son."

"I just think he's going to be great. I really want to see him because I've never seen a skydiver."

"It's just something new for them. It's a way to raise money for the Jefferson Elementary School," said principal Dixie Vejil. "For them to see that there's other professions..."
Skydiver

from PAGE 1

Anticipation as Hermosillo

made his landing.

"I think it's awesome,"

Armendia said. "I'm so glad

they do things like this for the kids."

Once safely on the ground,

Hermosillo answered questions from the students that quickly surrounded him.

"It's nice and cool up there,"

Hermosillo said as he wiped

his brow. "I wanted to stay up

there."

One curious student asked

how he did it.

"Parachute did," Hermosillo

said with a smile.

"It did all the work. I just steered."

Hermosillo said as he wiped

off his brow. "I wanted to stay up

there."

Schools

from PAGE 1

The cost of a new elementary school is approximately $34 million. Reconstruc-ion of Broadmoor Elementary is expected to cost about $12 million. If the application is approved for both projects, PSFA would fund half of the cost for each school.

Broadmoor would open in January 2015 to make room for more students, said superintendent TJ Parks. "They are going to sure that the numbers are there." The next expansion to the hospital would be an inpatient area added to the east side of the building. The hospital currently has 25 beds, of which 10 are in an inpatient area. The expansion growth, spurring the need for more space.

"I think it is a combination of things," Shaw said. "That should be adequate at this time to meet our

needs," he said. "That could happen possibly in two years."

A 100-unit apartment complex that has been planned is moving forward on the southern section would give the hospital 25 private rooms.

"That should be adequate at this time to meet our

needs," he said. "That could happen possi-

bly in two years."

The hospital's patient load has continued to grow, spurring the need for more space.

"I think it is a combination of things," Shaw said. "That should be adequate at this time to meet our

needs," he said. "That could happen possi-

bly in two years."

The land is sold to the developer and he is making plans for an assisted living facility on the property, but has not date set for the opening.

Nor-Lea

from PAGE 1

As a BONUS

you will also

receive all

qualifying rebates!

you will also

Nor-Lea recently released its master plan for the next 10-15 years. This drawing shows future expansions to the hospital. A new clinic, and large parking lot will begin construction this year.